

CMES Universal Pre-K's celebrate "RANDOM ACTS OF KINDNESS" Week!

During the past week, the Universal Pre-K students at Center McMechen Elementary (CMES) have been practicing "Acts of Kindness" within their school and community. A primary focus of the preschool curriculum is learning how to work together, and learning how to become a member of their classroom, school, and community. Children are surrounded by positive role models at the CMES who are symbols of what a kind school represents.

We took the opportunity to work together to give back to our school and community by showing our appreciation for all they have given to us throughout this school year.

The students began their acts of kindness by giving back to their community. They made cards of kindness for local elderly residents of the Golden Towers facility (pictured is Taylor White handing out a card of kindness to a local Golden Towers resident).

They continued their acts of kindness, by creating a "Kindness Quilt" that they presented to Mr. Yoder, the school principal, as well as the staff of the CMES (pictured are the Universal Pre-K classes presenting the Kindness Quilt to Mr. Yoder, CMES principal). Our quilt is proudly displayed in the school hallway as a reminder that CMES is a kind school. We are greeted each morning with a friendly announcement to remind us of how kind our school, its staff and principal are towards our school family.
